MDC's BIG SPLASH

Scheduled for Mar. 18, 7:30 p.m. in the YW pool, "Syncopated Seasons," this year's swimming show, will feature a group of original ballet numbers, and keen competition. It will culminate in awarding the traditional cup to the best all-around swimmer.

This year Downer will enter the National Inter-collegiate Telegraphic swimming meet. The girls will compete with other colleges throughout the central states, the results being sent in by telegraph.

In competition for the cup, swimmers may enter two out of four races, two strokes for form, and diving.

Following the competition, softly colored lights and dreamy music will provide background as the girls carry out the theme of changing seasons with their original water ballet. These numbers were planned and directed by Karen Sudnes, Jo Sanderson, Bev and Gloria Olsen, Mary Ann Rzutkiewicz, Peg Peil, Peg Gluck, Gloria Groleski, and Midge Evert. Every swimmer, beginner, intermediate, or advanced will take part.

Bev Olsen is general manager of the show, while Peg Peil is in charge of programs and Peg Gluck is publicity chairman. Decorations are in Midge Evert's care and Mary Fortney is in charge of lights. The announcer will be Pat Holm.

Coached for weeks by Miss Jean Gebhardt, cup contenders plan to put forth every effort to make the meet an outstanding event on the MDC calendar.

SAY IT WITH MUSIC

and "Seal It with a Kiss," which is what we're going to do with this article. Most of us don't realize how often a song title fits an event, so here's a musical sketch of a year at MDC.

"Tis Autumn" and all the students are "Together" again. Everyone's asking, "What's New" and "Whispering" about "The Things We Did Last Summer." And of course, we must go to classes. The only song we can think of for this is "An Apple for the Teacher."

Then comes Fall Razzing when the sophs wear their "I'll Never Smile Again" look, but freshmen think "There Must Be a Way" and set about to entertain the sophs with "Something Old, Something New," just like a couple of "Song and Dance Men," until it's time to "Pass That Peace Pipe."

Then comes Thanksgiving vacation when we can all say "Leave the Dishes in the Sink, Mom." and sleep all day.

Usually in December we have our first glimpses of "Winter Wonderland" and by the time the 25th rolls 'round, we're all set for a "White Christmas." Maybe you'll ask for an "Alice Blue Gown," but "I'll Take Romance."

After Christmas comes Junior Prom ("Moonlight and Roses" this year) and lots of girls get "Orchids for Remembrance."

Then, oh, horrors, we have finals, and as we cram "In the Still of the Night," we realize "How Little We Know."

Bringing us up to date we're almost ready for "April Showers" and soon there'll be "Golden Days" and "Blue Skies." From the way this reporter feels, "It might as Well Be Spring."

PANEL DISCUSSIONS

A group of Downer students is giving a series of panels to tell the outside world what they look for at college, and what MDC has given them.

First of the series was presented to the trustees Feb. 23 by Joan Atwell, Mac Barnes, Bunny Stolzoff, and Betty Ren Wright.

Mar. 3 Joan Atwell, Ellie Wenger, Gail Kuckuk, Betty Ren Wright, and Mac Barnes spoke to counselors and deans of high schools.

Other panels are being planned for future dates.

NEVER A DULL MOMENT

Survival of the fittest is a principle of life as old as the beginning of time. Nevertheless, it is still operating on the Milwaukee busses any city student will tell you.

If you can remain seated on the back seat of the green bus when it goes over some of the famous "east side bumps," you can ride any horse alive. What is really the prime test of endurance, however, is to keep from jumping out of your skin when the sides of the new green busses make that noise that sounds like a pistol shot.

Fiendish drivers off duty practice opening and closing bus doors so as to increase their speed and accuracy in breaking innocent passengers' legs or ripping their coats. For riders who are not brushing up on their assignments, the gay Transport Company furnishes early morning reading in the form of p

SPRING FEVER ALREADY

The sun shone bright the other day,
To rouse me from my sleep;
I hurried to my window and
The snow was two feet deep.

I sighed and thought of warm spring days-----
The snow all thawing out;
The smell of fresh, new earth once more,
With green buds all about.

But the snows will soon be melting,
And things will start to
hum;
The sun will shine from morn to night-----
When will vacation come?

over their vehicles. "Do your eyes have that tired, dragged-out feeling?" "Is your dog too big for an apartment?" "Buy one of our modernistic homes." "Let us snap your picture--you too can be beautiful." The plushy green seats are equipped with box springs, but occupied by young men who long ago buried chivalry.

Routes of these morbid mobiles are planned carefully to add to passenger comfort. As in the case of the Edgewood bus, mercy stations like Columbia Hos- are placed near the end of the line to take care of casualties. Said casualties are not to be pitied; they should have known enough to get off before.

Q U I C K S N A P S

Miss Hadley requests a comment on the temperature of Miss Sweetland's room. Room 14, she insists, is an oven by comparison. This is a broad statement, but investigation verifies it. Hooray for the blue (lips, that is) of MDC!

One morning as Gail Kuckuk was pinning models on the Home Ec Club poster Liz Kieckhefer asked: "Latest fashions from Mademoiselle?" Gail's reply silenced Liz. "No, Sears-Roebuck catalogue."

EDITOR TRACES GARBAGE

Detective Stetler was recently seen dumping rubbage from one can to another. Her desperate hunt was rewarded, for helped by Annie, she eventually found her cartoon and copy.
